Staff Are Our Greatest Resource

Many of our employees have moved around and through TWC as program participants, staff, donors, and volunteers. This graphic shows the different ways that a small selection of our staff members have been involved with TWC over the years.

At TWC, we are proud of the depth and breadth of the experience, knowledge and skills of our staff. Some have utilized TWC services themselves either as children and teens in the youth groups, or as adults needing survivor services, so they come at the work from the perspective of a survivor helping other survivors. Additionally, many staff members have taken opportunities to work in different programs at TWC and are able to understand the intersectional nature of the support needed by survivors and program participants. The resulting cohesion of available services is truly an example of the concept of “the whole is greater than the sum of the parts.” We are infinitely grateful for our talented staff.

Recurring Donors Offer Sustaining Support

Individual donors are instrumental to TWC's mission. Unrestricted funds allow programs to offer flexible and timely services to survivors. One great way to maximize your support to TWC without feeling a pinch in your wallet is to set up a recurring donation at tundrapeace.org. A monthly $25 donation can feel much more achievable in your monthly budget and has the same impact as a $300 annual donation. Quyanara for your support of TWC!
